Targeting Housing Resources

Maximizing Housing Resources and Reducing Barriers to Support Re-Entry of People with Serious mental Illness

Basics for Re-Entry Approaches

Basics for your approach:

- Get agreement on your purpose
- Use multiple types of housing resources:
 - for bridge and permanent housing
 - Units with deeply affordable rent, subsidies and set-asides
 - Ensure connection to services: to CMHCs, programs funded by your SMHA

Basics for Re-Entry Approaches

- Create connections at the systems level and for individuals to get and keep housing and connections to services and supports
- Identify and reduce barriers---this process never stops
- Create a list of all the essential functions and responsibilities for each---test out your flow
- Identify data points and create a daily-weekly dashboard to track progress

Basics for Re-Entry Approaches

- Ensure you can achieve "quick access" to:
 - short term rental arrangements
 - > longer term permanent arrangements
- Maintain a focus on tenancy rights and help individuals with criminal records gain access to housing
- Build assertive engagement and tenancy support capacity—utilize Medicaid and state dollars for community and housing support services
- Become part of a local supportive housing initiative for individuals at risk or with high needs

Short Term Housing Resources

- Short term-bridge and transitional housing
 - Secure state and local funding-one time savings, shared resources with the criminal justice system, local government resources
 - Focus support on assisting an individual to create a long-term plan
 - Keep your timeframe short
 - Before your start: create a "next step" plan for individuals in short term housing

State and Federal Housing Resources

- Project (PBV/PRA) and Tenant Based (TBV)
 Rental Assistance
 - Benefits of each
- Operating assistance that covers operating costs and reduces rents
- Capital (one time) to cover pre-development and development costs
- One-time move-in costs (security and utility deposits, rent arrearages and household goods)

Federal Permanent Housing Resources

- Federal Rental Resources
 - -811 Program Rental Assistance (PRA)
 - Mainstream Vouchers (HCVs)
 - National Low Income Housing Trust Fund
 - LIHTC 9% and 4% Credits
 - CJCC grants and other one-time resources and grants

Each of these resources requires collaboration/ agreements between state and local housing and human services organizations

Types of State and Local Housing Resources

- Agreements with local PHAs for HCV preferences
- State and local housing trust funds/housing bonds
- One-time funds after risk requirements are met--Medicaid savings
- Joint arrangements with the CJ and CoC systems
- State and local general funds for services and rental assistance

2000 people released because of Covid

- Persons with a history of homelessness and mental health challenges were being held because they didn't have an 'housing plan'
- The City was saving money from releasing 2000 people (119 dollars per day per person)
- People without supports were reoffending in the first week of being released
- Historically, 60% of persons released come back within 6 months
- · As a result, RHD Housing Smart for Returning Citizens started

Purpose: To document and analyze the performance of PFS PSH Demonstration grantees and the partnerships they form across the PFS lifecycle to see if PFS a viable model for scaling supportive housing and improving outcomes for a re-entry population.

Research Objectives:

- Document progress and processes among the PFS partners, identifying the successes/challenges that each grantee faced and how they dealt with it
- Document the costs incurred by the PFS partners as the moved through the PFS lifecycle
- 3. Document the benefits of a PFS PSH model for a jail reentry population that will inform subsequent analyses of this model
- Deliver consultation to the grantees and their independent evaluation teams on the development and collection of baseline outcome data

Increasing Housing Access for Returning Citizens

- 2016 HUD guidance on landlord use of criminal records in screening and admissions policies:
 - Housing denials on basis of criminal record could be discriminatory practice given racial disparities in criminal justice system;
 - Arrests may not be used to deny housing;
 - No blanket prohibition on people with criminal records;
 - Rejections based on criminal conviction must demonstrate risk to resident safety and/or property;
 - Burden of proof is on landlords to demonstrate that relationship between conviction and risk.

Office of General Counsel Guidance on Application of Fair Housing Act Standards to the Use of Criminal Records by Providers of Housing and Real Estate-Related Transactions

I. Introduction

The Fair Housing Act (or Act) prohibits discrimination in the sale, rental, or financing of dwellings and in other housing-related activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, disability, familial status or national origin. HUD's Office of General Coursel issues this guidance concerning how the Fair Housing Act applies to the use of criminal history by providers or operators of housing and real-estate related transactions. Specifically, this guidance addresses how the discriminatory effects and disparate treatment methods of proof apply in Fair Housing Act cases in which a housing provider justifies an adverse housing action — such as a refusal to rent or renew a lease — based on an individual's criminal history.

II. Background

As many as 100 million U.S. adults—or nearly one-third of the population—have a criminal record of some sont.² The United States prison population of 2.2 million adults is by far the largest in the world.³ As of 2012, the United States accounted for only about five percent of the world's population, yet almost one quarter of the world's prisoners were held in American prisons.⁴ Since 2004, an average of over 650,000 individuals have been released annually from federal and state prisons.⁵ and over 95 percent of current immates will be released at some point.⁶ When individuals are released from prisons and julls, their ability to access safe, secure and affordable housing is critical to their successful reentry to society.⁷ Yet many formerly incarcerated individuals, as well as individuals who were convicted but not incarcerated, encounter significant barriers to securing housing, including public and other federally-subsidized broasing.
