18 INTRODUCTION

19 A. Ninth Circuit Ruling

20 The Ninth Circuit ruled that this Court "applied an erroneous legal standard 21 in concluding that the EPSDT provisions require the State to provide wraparound 22 and TFC. The district court mistakenly assumed that if all the components of 23 wraparound and TFC fall within categories listed in § 1396d(a), and that 24 wraparound and TFC can be deemed health care 'services' in themselves, then the 25 package of components must be offered in the form of wraparound or TFC." 26 Katie A., ex rel. Ludin v. Los Angeles County, 481 F.3d 1150, 1157 (9th Cir.
27 2007).
28

1 The Ninth Circuit stated that this Court “did not explore the possibility that 2 the State might only have an obligation to fund the component services of 3 wraparound and TFC, rather than to offer the coordinated complex of services in a 4 single package” and concluded that “the EPSDT provisions require only that the 5 individual services listed in § 1396d(a) be provided, without specifying that they 6 be provided in any particular form.” Id. at 1157, 1158. The Ninth Circuit 7 therefore concluded that this Court “should have examined whether all required 8 component services under § 1396d(a) were already being supplied. If all 9 mandated services under § 1396d(a) are being supplied effectively, the State is not 10 obliged to go further and package the services as wraparound and TFC.” Id. at 11 1158. The Ninth Circuit also noted that “[w]hile the states must live up to their 12 obligations to provide all EPSDT services, the statute and regulations afford them 13 discretion as to how to do so. There is nothing in the EPSDT statutory provisions 14 or regulations that indicates that the state must generally design its Medicaid 15 system to fund ‘packages’ of EPSDT services.” Id. at 1159.¹

16 The Ninth Circuit instructed this Court to employ the following approach 17 on remand:

18 The court should have first determined whether the State is meeting 19 its legal obligation under the EPSDT provisions to provide all 20 individual health services that fall under the categories listed in § 21 1396d(a). Then, if it found that the State is failing to provide the 22 individual health services effectively, the court should have 23 determined whether the failure could only be remedied by ordering 24 the State to fund the individual services as a single “bundle.” Rather

25
26 ¹ At footnote 15 of its opinion the Ninth Circuit stated, “It is possible that if the 27 State fails adequately to provide the component services, and the effectiveness of 28 those services requires their coordinated delivery, it may be appropriate to require the State to provide services packaged together in a particular form, such as wraparound or TFC.”

1 than applying a legal rule that requires the State always to fund a 2 coordinated bundle of services if the individual components fall 3 under § 1396d(a), the court should have applied a legal rule that 4 would allow the State to exercise its discretion as to how to meet its 5 EPSDT obligation effectively to provide all the component services 6 that fall under § 1396d(a). On remand, the district court should 7 analyze plaintiffs' likelihood of success on their Medicaid Act claims 8 in this manner.

9 Id. at 1160. Moreover, the Ninth Circuit noted,

10 [O]n remand, in order to comply with Rule 52(a) and to facilitate 11 appellate review, the district court should first make separate 12 determinations as to (1) whether each component service of 13 wraparound and TFC falls under a particular provision of § 1396d(a), 14 and (2) whether defendants have effectively provided each mandated 15 component service, before applying the standard discussed above to 16 determine whether the State should be required to provide the 17 required services in another manner which will render such services 18 effective, or proceed directly to wraparound and TFC.

19 Id. at 1162-63.

20 B. Status Upon Remand

21 The parties are familiar with the voluminous papers that were filed after 22 plaintiffs moved anew for a preliminary injunction. Although the Court was 23 prepared to assess their positions in the manner required by the Ninth Circuit, the 24 parties' respective memoranda and evidence did little to focus the analysis beyond 25 what had been presented and argued back in 2006. For that reason, the Court 26 issued separate orders on August 12, 2008 and August 13, 2008 directing the 27 parties to address several specific questions at the August 14, 2008 hearing 28 ("Hearing"). Among these questions were the following:

1 • Question. (a) This Court did not deal with billing in its Order. (433 2 F.Supp.2d 1065.) Yet the Ninth Circuit ruled that the Court erred because,
 3 as the Ninth Circuit put it,

 5 The Court did not explore the possibility that the State might only 6 have an obligation to fund the component services of wraparound 7 and TFC, rather than to offer the coordinated complex of services in 8 a single package.

 10 ... [D]efendants had stated in their opposition to Plaintiffs' motion 11 for a preliminary injunction that 'Medi-Cal already covers the 12 services that Plaintiffs are entitled to under Medicaid and that 13 Plaintiffs were seeking a bundled rate.' There was also evidence in* 14 the record that Medi-Cal currently reimburses providers for at least 15 some components of wraparound and TFC. Therefore the court
 16 should have examined whether all required component services 17 under § 1396d(a) were already being supplied."

18 481 F.3d at 1158 (emphasis added). Does this quote and the passage cited 19 below from 481 F.3d at 1161 suggest that the Ninth Circuit conflated the 20 question of the required delivery of services with the different (albeit 21 related) question of billing for services?

22 (b) Given that both sides agree that at least many of the component 23 aspects of wraparound and TFC are required under § 1396d(a), is the real 24 dispute about how providers will bill for services they render? Are 25 Defendants opposing this motion because they do not want to reimburse 26 providers for wraparound or TFC services that are billed as such--i.e., 27 described and labeled as wraparound or TFC? If that is the crux of 28 Defendants' concern, then is whether someone who is a coordinator or

1 integrator of component services, such as a “wraparound coordinator,” 2 eligible for Medicaid funding an example of the issue? (See App. A to 3 5/12/06 Addendum to Order Granting Plaintiffs’ Motion for Preliminary 4 Injunction, p.2.) How about a “wraparound facilitator”? A TFC
 5 “coordinator”? If that is the key concern, would Plaintiffs agree that 6 persons who coordinate the delivery of those services could not bill for 7 wraparound or TFC-- “as such”?

8 • Question. The Ninth Circuit directed this Court to determine whether 9 “the State is failing to provide the individual health services effectively” 10 before determining whether any failure to do so “could only be remedied by 11 ordering the State to fund the individual services as a single ‘bundle.’” 12 (481 F.3d at 1161) (emphasis added). How is the Court to evaluate the 13 effectiveness of the delivery of those components of wraparound and TFC
 14 that even Plaintiffs acknowledge are being provided? What is the key 15 evidence on which each side relies for its position as to effectiveness vel 16 non?

17 • Question. See n.15 to the Ninth Circuit’s opinion (481 F.3d at 18 1157): Assuming the State does adequately provide the component services 19 required by EPSDT, do Plaintiffs contend that “the effectiveness of those 20 services requires their coordinated delivery . . .”? Plaintiffs repeatedly 21 insist that “Plaintiffs do not contend that California must provide 22 wraparound services (or TFC) as a single bundled service under Medi- 23 Cal.” [Reply Brief, 8:16-18]. (What do Plaintiffs mean by the phrase 24 “single bundled service”?) How do Plaintiffs reconcile that assertion with 25 their many other implicit, and sometimes explicit, contentions to the effect 26 that all the components of both wraparound and TFC must be provided as 27 if in a package? For example, Plaintiffs state “. . . [A]ll the components of 28 wraparound services and TFC in Appendices A and B are necessary and . .

1 they all must be provided in a coordinated fashion to be effective 2 [Opening Memo. 18:6-8]. Similarly, Plaintiffs assert that “[T]o be 3 effective TFC ‘must be provided as an integrated service,’ which means that 4 the ‘components are interrelated and must be coordinated.’” Id., 21:2-4.

5 The parties’ responses to these questions, their arguments at the August 14, 2008
 6 hearing on plaintiffs’ Renewed Motion for a Preliminary Injunction and the papers 7 they filed afterward have prompted the Court to step back and look at the 8 proverbial “big picture.” In some respects it is a disappointing picture indeed.

9 This case involves complex statutes and regulations; innovative strategies 10 for dealing with mental illness and behavioral problems afflicting children and 11 adolescents; the challenge of coordinating the efforts of such disparate Medicaid 12 providers as physicians, social workers, lawyers, teachers, family members and 13 foster parents, all of whom serve or treat those children; foster care systems 14 throughout the state that are beleaguered on many fronts; and the ever-present 15 (and growing) gap between the legal responsibilities of governments and their 16 capacity to discharge those costly responsibilities. Moreover, both sides are 17 forced to navigate through a bureaucratic maze: three different governmental 18 systems - - federal, state and local - - with their own sets of laws, regulations and 19 procedures. (Medicaid is a federal program. Medi-Cal is a state program, but it is 20 administered by and dependent on California’s 58 counties.) Moreover, each 21 governmental system wishes to limit the amount of money it has to spend.²

22 The parties ostensibly share the basic objective of seeing to it that the right 23 of these children to receive services mandated by Medicaid and Medi-Cal is fully 24 enforced. Moreover, they now appear to be in agreement about certain issues 25 they previously treated as in conflict. Yet, as the Court noted at the hearing,

26

 27 ² To deal with severe fiscal and budgetary constraints, the State Defendants attempt 28 to enforce complicated reporting, billing and reimbursement requirements by imposing rigorous audit procedures.

1 despite the huge costs in time, money and resources that litigation exacts, both 2 sides seem more intent on vindicating their respective contentions than on 3 pursuing promising opportunities to narrow their differences and even reach an 4 agreement, especially as to wraparound.

5 So what, really, is the problem? There are actually two problems. First, 6 there is genuine, but somewhat misplaced, confusion as to whether certain 7 components of wraparound and TFC qualify as required EPSDT services.
8 Second, and more importantly, it now is clear that the main practical barrier is 9 determining how providers may and should bill for those services.

10 In 2006, after much prodding, plaintiffs finally described just what 11 wraparound and TFC consist of. Since then, however, they have had difficulty 12 demonstrating clearly that the State Defendants are not providing those services.
13 Indeed, plaintiffs now acknowledge that in several respects at least some of these 14 services are being provided, albeit not necessarily as part of Medi-Cal. The State 15 Defendants, for their part, claim to provide all required EPSDT services to 16 members of the plaintiff class. Yet in opposing plaintiffs' efforts to obtain 17 wraparound and TFC under EPSDT as a matter of right, State Defendants still 18 cling unreasonably to a semantical mantra dependent on an unnecessary 19 technicality - i.e., they are not required to provide wraparound and TFC "as such." 20 This position fails to recognize not only the broad scope of EPSDT, but the 21 essence of both wraparound and TFC.

22 And yet, there is a reasonable basis to find that the parties can reach 23 agreement on many issues. Their respective responses to the Court's pre-hearing 24 written questions, their concessions at the hearing, and their post-hearing 25 submissions collectively provide a promising basis to do so, as the following 26 summary demonstrates.

27

28

1 C. Framework for Negotiations

2 1. Answers to Court's Pre-hearing Questionnaires

3 At page 5 of plaintiffs' August 20, 2008 written response to this Court's 4 Question 15, plaintiffs acknowledged that "the SB-163 wraparound programs and 5 the pilot program in Marin County [are] currently providing wraparound 6 programs" but that "whether they are providing all of the components of 7 wraparound services . . . in a coordinated fashion" - - is unclear.³ "However, 8 plaintiffs suspect that many children enrolled in these programs are receiving all 9 the components of wraparound services and in a coordinated fashion."

10 2. Representations at Hearing

11 (a) State Defendants' Representations. State Defendants' counsel 12 represented that as to wraparound "California is already covering those things 13 ["Immediate Crisis Stabilization" and "Engagement of Child/Family"] if they are 14 billed under Case Management and Rehabilitative options." [Transcript, p.15.]

15 • It appears from the gist of other statements made by State 16 Defendants' counsel that California's position is that other components of 17 wraparound services that were listed on Dr. Redman's Table (attached hereto as 18 Exhibit A), also are covered. See, e.g., Transcript p.53:

19 "In terms of the delivery of services that we're calling 20 wraparound services, anything that involves immediate stabilization 21 and bringing the people together to work with this child specifically 22 and planning and providing the services, those services are already 23 being covered under the Medicaid Act called Case Management and 24 Rehabilitative Services.

25 Specifically for Rehabilitative Services - excuse me, one second.

26 I'll add that, in addition, any one of those components that cover 27 improving or restoring a beneficiary's daily living skills, social and leisure 28 skills, support resources or education shall be covered under the Medicaid Act and is already being covered

³ Plaintiffs also emphasize that the SB-163 programs are in place on only some 40 counties.

1 So however those components are broken down, if they fall into one 2 of those categories under Case Management and Rehab option, we not only have covered them, we do cover them and will continue to cover them.

3 Because Ms. Redman's charting talks about every other state, I think 4 it's quite interesting that she lists Case Management and Rehabilitation 5 options in those charts for all those other states. But here in California, we're saying the same language. If you bill it under Rehabilitation and Case Management, we have covered it, we will cover it, we do cover it.
(Emphasis added.)

6 • State Defendants' counsel also confirmed that "[i]f work is 7 performed that consists of 'engagement of child slash [sic] family,' the state 8 agrees that falls within the Medicaid statute and the Medi-Cal program" Id., 9 p.56. Indeed, counsel volunteered that "all of the things listed here [Exhibit A, the 10 Table of Contents for Redman Declaration] can fall under Case Management or 11 Rehabilitative Services" Id. at 58.

12 (b) Plaintiffs' Representations.

13 • Counsel for plaintiffs, in turn, reiterated that 39-40 counties in 14 California do provide "wraparound," albeit not as a Medi-Cal program and not 15 "effectively" (in his opinion) because not as an entitlement for all eligible 16 children.

17 • In addition, plaintiffs' counsel concluded his remarks with this 18 observation:

19 If we are where we are today and the state defendants are 20 prepared to concede that all nine components of wraparound services 21 are covered by Medicaid, and they are also representing to the Court 22 that they can be covered under Medi-Cal currently, then the relief that's being sought may be much more along the lines the Court talked about earlier, which is letters and notices going out advising both recipients as to what their entitlement is - - and we haven't gone into the issue of exactly who would be entitled and eligibility criteria
- - and advising providers about how they could bill and deliver those services.

23 Id. at 81. (Emphasis added.)

1 3. Post-hearing Filings⁴

2 (a) Plaintiffs

3 Plaintiffs filed several exhibits. The Court compiled a Table of Contents of 4 those items. It is attached hereto as Exhibit B.⁵ Exhibit 184, the DMH Letter No.
5 06-05 (July 24, 2006) appears to be the key one. The letter lists and describes in 6 detail those wraparound components initially listed by plaintiffs that are 7 reimbursable under Medi-Cal.⁶ The DMH circulated that letter as a means of 8 implementing the now-vacated Preliminary Injunction that this Court issued on 9 March 14, 2006.

10 (b) Defendants

11 • Rita McCabe, currently the Chief of the Medi-Cal Mental Health Policy 12 Branch and other Health Care Benefits of the California Department of Mental 13 Health ("DMH"), is a dedicated, hard-working, official who has been required to 14 devote long, difficult hours to addressing issues in this case and the related Emily 15 Q litigation. On August 20, 2008, State Defendants filed her declaration in 16 support of their Supplemental Brief. Among other things, Ms. McCabe explained 17 in detail the basis for a revealing chart (attached hereto as Exhibit C) that 18 constitutes page three of the Defendants' Supplemental Brief. Ms. McCabe 19 represented that of the nine components of wraparound defined by plaintiffs' 20 expert, Dr. Redman, four are authorized outright by Medi-Cal and the remaining

22 ⁴ The Court takes judicial notice of all the documents that both sides filed, except 23 as to disputed declarations. But even those declarations are nevertheless relevant 24 and admissible for purposes of this order.

25 ⁵ In the future, all parties shall attach a Table of Contents to exhibits and declarations 26 they file, which thus far have been unusually voluminous.

27 ⁶ This Court finds that those components are Medi-Cal eligible, notwithstanding 28 Deputy Attorney General Goldsmith's remarks at the most recent deposition of Rita McCabe.

1 five could be authorized, under certain circumstances, which she helpfully 2 described.

3 • State Defendants later filed a series of documents described in the 4 attached Exhibit D, a Table of Contents the Court also compiled. State 5 Defendants included the declaration of Bradley Norman, which identifies 6 individuals and programs that currently provide guidance as to “Medi-Cal billing” 7 for eligible wraparound services. (See Norman Decl. ¶¶ 6, 10.) In addition, State 8 Defendants filed the declaration of Curtis Yukoi, which contains “Program Code 9 Descriptions” that provide guidance on how to claim Medi-Cal funds. Moreover, 10 they filed the Declaration of Gary Renslo, who reveals that as recently as July 11 2008 the DMH completed and posted on its website a Medi-Cal Billing Manual.

12 The Court is distinctly unimpressed with plaintiffs’ negative approach in 13 their September 4, 2008 opposition to the State Defendants’ submission of this 14 evidence, and the Court overrules their objection to the late filing of those 15 documents. It is disappointing that plaintiffs utterly ignored the Court’s explicit 16 invitation at the Hearing to not only look for, but exploit, the many promising 17 areas of agreement that emerged at the Hearing. Particularly disturbing is 18 plaintiffs’ complaint in their footnote 4 that the State Defendants changed their 19 position as to which components of wraparound services are covered by MediCal.
20 The change in the State Defendants’ position went a considerable distance toward 21 accepting plaintiffs’ contentions. Plaintiffs could have figuratively declared 22 partial victory. Instead, they complained that State Defendants did not explain 23 why they changed their position. Plaintiffs also cavalierly pooh-poohed the 24 potential benefit of the California Institute for Mental Health (“CIMH”) EPSDT 25 Chart Documentation Manual and they flatly ignored the potential benefit from 26 the technical assistance that EMQ provides to California counties having SB 163
27 programs. Also regrettable is plaintiffs’ failure to see the opening that the DMH 28 letter No. 06-05 provides. Finally, while the DMH Billing Manual attached to Mr.

1 Renslo's declaration may not answer all of plaintiffs' questions, it is a very recent 2 document that should have prompted plaintiffs to reevaluate their position.

3 II.

4 MANDATED NEGOTIATIONS: WRAPAROUND

5 The foregoing summary confirms that at least as to wraparound what is 6 urgently needed - - and clearly feasible - - is a good faith joint effort by the parties 7 to develop letters and notices that the State Defendants will disseminate to all of 8 the County Mental Health Plans ("MHPs"), and to as many eligible recipients (or 9 their individual and institutional representatives) as possible. Such negotiations 10 will surely assist the parties in reducing or eliminating the confusion about 11 wraparound's Medicare/Medi-Cal status. They likely also will reduce or eliminate 12 the concern of MHPs, providers and recipients as to whether such services will be 13 reimbursed. The Court ORDERS the parties to undertake that effort promptly.
14 The letter and notices that the parties shall develop shall list specifically, and in 15 plain language, the components of wraparound defined by Dr. Redman that are 16 covered by Medi-Cal, and it should explain how these services properly may be 17 characterized and billed. In conducting these negotiations, the parties shall make 18 maximum use of the offers, assurances and materials identified above.

19 The parties shall file a status report on their negotiations by not later than 20 October 29, 2008. If at any point before then or by then they conclude that their 21 efforts can be assisted by the Court, they are welcome to request such assistance.

22 III.

23 PRELIMINARY OBSERVATIONS

24 RE WRAPAROUND COORDINATION

25 The Court may ultimately have to determine the second prong that the 26 Ninth Circuit referred to as important for appellate review - - i.e., whether 27 providing the components of wraparound separately is "effective" or whether 28 instead delivery of those services must be coordinated to satisfy the EPSDT

1 requirements. Because the State Defendants have (to their credit) re-evaluated 2 their position as to which components of wraparound fall within EPSDT, if they 3 request the opportunity to respond to the following preliminary observations -- 4 they are not final findings -- the Court will allow them to do so, after the parties 5 report to the Court about their negotiations and the Court makes its findings as to 6 the first prong (i.e., which components fall within EPSDT).

7 Under one statute, wraparound services are comprehensive and holistic 8 services that should be provided in a coordinated fashion. See, e.g., California 9 Welfare and Institutions Code § 18251(d), defining wraparound services as 10 “community-based intervention services that emphasize the strengths of the child 11 and family and includes the delivery of coordinated, highly individualized 12 unconditional services to address needs and achieve positive outcomes in their 13 lives.” Cal. Welf. & Inst. § 18251(d) (emphasis added).

14 As seen in the following evidence, there is clear support for the conclusion 15 that wraparound services must be coordinated to be effective.⁷ For example, the 16 first component of wraparound services is “Engagement of the Child and Family.”
 17 See App. A at 2. Bruce Kamradt, the Director of Wraparound Milwaukee, states 18 that “one cannot provide necessary services for the child without engaging the 19 family” because a “basic precept of wraparound services . . . is that a child is a 20 member of [a] family” and that the family must become “an active participant in 21 determining the child’s strengths and needs, developing a plan to meet the child’s 22 needs and helping to marshal the services to meet those needs.” Supp. Kamradt 23 Decl. ¶ 4. See also Penrod Decl. ¶ 23 (Child family team “acts as the ‘glue’ to 24 coordinating the implementation of all the components of wraparound services,

25

26 ⁷ The evidence was encompassed in Plaintiffs’ Proposed Findings of Fact and 27 Conclusions of Law. See e.g., ¶¶ 31-32. The Court invited State Defendants to 28 challenge the accuracy of and factual basis for those citations, and State Defendants pointed to no errors.

1 and the team itself functions as a mode of treatment.”). “It makes absolutely no 2 sense to form a child and family team but not have this team intimately involved 3 in and responsible for planning for any mental or behavioral crisis of the child, 4 gathering information as to the child’s strengths and needs, developing a plan to 5 deliver necessary services to the child through both formal and natural supports, 6 tracking the success of this plan and making necessary adjustments, and ultimately 7 planning for the child’s transition away from wraparound services.” Further Farr 8 Decl. ¶ 9. See also Supp. Penrod Decl. ¶ 22 (“By coordinated, I mean that the 9 components of wraparound services are interrelated and interconnected. For 10 example, the child and family must be engaged through the child’s treatment and 11 involved in forming the child and family team; the child and family team must be 12 involved in developing and implementing the treatment and crisis plans; and the 13 goals determined by the child and family team must drive the treatment and 14 ultimately the transition from wraparound services.”). See also Penrod Decl. ¶ 24 15 (“Disconnected efforts often led to less-effective outcomes. Instead, [Arizona] 16 found that the best way to ensure that the services a child received from a provider 17 were effective was to have the child and family team work together with the 18 provider and coordinate the child’s care from the provider.”); accord, Supp.
19 Friedman Decl. ¶ 18 (Providers in Nebraska of multi-systemic therapy (“MST”), a 20 treatment for children with anti-social behavior, originally provided services 21 independent of the wraparound team only to find that the children were not having 22 the expected positive outcomes. Once the MST providers were integrated into the 23 wraparound team, the children’s mental health improved.)

24 Members of the statewide class are often involved with more than one state 25 system (i.e., welfare, mental health, probation) and they often receive care from 26 more than one provider. Rauso Decl. ¶ 12; Supp. Farr. Decl. ¶ 10. Thus, it is 27 critical that all those caregivers work together to meet the child’s needs. Supp.
28 Kamradt Decl. ¶ 8. Otherwise, there is a risk of “disjointed or competing

1 assignments or orders from different providers or systems [that] may make it 2 virtually impossible for the child and family to accomplish them all, thereby 3 setting the child and family up for failure.” Rauso Decl. ¶ 12. Thus, absent 4 coordination, providers may be working in opposite directions as to whether to 5 keep a child in the home or allow him to remain in public school. Supp. Kamradt 6 Decl. ¶ 8; Supp. Huffine Decl. ¶ 19 (“[C]hild and family are pulled in a variety of 7 directions by different obligations and approaches and there is a replication of 8 efforts by different child-serving agencies.”)

9 Moreover, wraparound is considered an “evidence-based practice” and “the 10 gold standard” in the mental health field, because the treatments have resulted 11 from randomized clinical trials. See Chamberlain Decl. ¶ 14; Second Supp.
12 Chamberlain Decl. ¶ 15; Friedman Decl. ¶¶ 19-21; Supp. Friedman Decl. ¶ 12; 13 Supp. Bruns Decl. ¶¶ 20, 30. “As a general proposition regarding evidence-based 14 practices, there is no evidence, and no reason to believe, that the intervention will 15 lead to the positive results that have been proven if you vary the method of 16 providing it from the way it was designed, developed and researched.” Supp.
17 Friedman Decl. ¶ 13; accord, Supp. Huffine Decl. ¶ 14; Second Supp.
18 Chamberlain Decl. ¶ 16.

19 Thus, given that wraparound was researched and developed with specific 20 components, the evidence shows that modifying or omitting any of these 21 components lessens the effectiveness of the services. See, e.g., Supp. Bruns Decl.
22 ¶¶ 21-24 (“There must be adherence to the fully specified practice for its benefits
23 to be conferred . . . One cannot take out any of the components and expect 24 successful outcomes for children.”). One wraparound provider in Sacramento 25 states that “even if a case manager is attentive, engaged and thoughtful, that 26 arrangement is not an adequate substitute for a functioning child and family 27 team.” Further Farr Decl. ¶ 3. See also Supp. Bruns Decl. ¶ 18 (noting that 28 research has found better outcomes through the “provision of services through a

1 treatment team"). Two studies by Dr. Eric Bruns further show that "the more that 2 the wraparound provider adhered to the core components," the "better the 3 outcomes would be for children and their families." Supp. Bruns Decl. ¶¶ 28-29.
 4 See also Supp. Friedman Decl. ¶ 18 (A multi-site Department of Defense 5 wraparound project did not provide all the components and did not coordinate the 6 components that were provided; as a result, there were not statistically significant 7 differences between children in the program and those receiving traditional mental 8 health services.)

10 THERAPEUTIC FOSTER CARE

11 The Court finds that the parties are further along in narrowing their 12 differences as to wraparound than they are as to "TFC." Moreover, there is a 13 complication as to TFC: will the moratorium on the Centers for Medicare and 14 Medicaid Services ("CMS") regulations expire on April 1, 2009?⁸ Because the 15 wraparound negotiations mandated by the preceding section of this order may 16 entail various problems in their own right, it would be imprudent to require the 17 parties simultaneously to embark on the same path as to TFC. Accordingly, at 23 ⁸ On June 30, 2008, President Bush signed into law Public Law 110-252 (H.R.

 24 2642), Supplemental Appropriations Act of 2008. Section 7001(a) of that law: (1) 25 extended the existing moratorium on the CMS regulations regarding rehabilitative 26 services until April 1, 2009 (Section 7001(a)(2)); (2) imposed a new moratorium on 27 the CMS regulations regarding case management services until April 1, 2009 28 (Section 7001(a)(3)(B)); and (3) prohibited the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services from taking "any action" to impose restrictions related to any of the regulations that are subject to these moratoria (Section 7001(a)(3)(A)).

1 this time the Court intends to take the preliminary injunction motion as to TFC 2 under submission.

STATE DEFENDANTS'
SUPPLEMENTAL BRIEF IN RESPONSE TO THE COURT'S AUGUST 14, 2008
ORDER

Hearing: Under Submission
Time: Under Submission
Courtroom: 14
Judge: Hon. A. Howard Matz

EXHIBIT C-1

To the Court and Plaintiffs:

By this pleading State Defendants submit their supplemental brief in response to the order of the Court issued on August 14, 2008 as follows:

- 1) Declaration setting forth whether the components of wraparound as listed in Appendix A and Therapeutic Foster Care as listed in Appendix B of the Table of Contents attached to Redman's declaration (Exhibit A) are covered by Medicaid/Medi-Cal program.
- 2) A declaration stating whether there is some State level "document" (letter, regulation, etc.) that sets forth the characteristics of what services fall within 1396(d)(a), such as Case Management, clinical services, Rehab, and Medical. The declaration should also explain the "document."

State Defendants provide the chart below to address the Court's directive for a "yes" or "no" answer. Please note, State Defendants have provided "yes" or "no" answers where possible. However, because there are components listed in Appendix A and B that do not lend themselves to yes or no answers because the components are only covered by Medicaid/Medi-Cal with additional qualifications, State Defendants have identified these components as a "maybe." All references are supported by explanations in the attached declaration of Rita McCabe. (Exhibit B.)

As for the second directive relating to a State level "documents," State Defendants include the pertinent text of Title 9 California Code of Regulations which describes the Medi-Cal criteria. (McCabe's Decl.) Also, State Defendants have included a copy of relevant portions of California's State Plan, effective July 1, 1993 with information from Richard Hildebrand. The State Plan describes the services provided under the medi-Cal Specialty Mental Health Services Program. (Richard Hildebrand at par. 3, 4.)

Finally, the State Defendants would like to reiterate its position that Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction should be denied because Plaintiffs
